ELLEN'S RECOMMENDATION

Eve dreaded to tackle them, for my eyes ain't as clear as they once was.—
But I'll get a piece of muslin to-morrow, as his you're a mind to make them up, why It'll be a great help to me, and pay your board three times over."

"O, aunt Susan." and Ellen's face bore now the smile of contentment.—
"I'm so glad you have something for me to do. I love to make shirts, and it'll be such a relief to me to feel that I am not eating the bread of idleness."

"Now, then, boys," said the helms man "let us shake out the reefs and go for time."

All agreed, and every inch of the boat's canvas war soon spread. "Get
